Up to two Hares run for free

For each Hash, up to two Hares/Rabbits will be allowed to run/walk for free. This is meant to encourage Hashers to volunteer to set Hashes and is recognition of the amount of work involved.

Tales from the Trail
aka WTF Happened Last Week
Hash Re-Run No. 1562
(The Girl's Just Wanna Have Fun Hash)

Hare: Fun Size Kit Kat Rabbit: Wunderbra

Venue: Sware Taw Myat Zedi, Sware Taw Myat Road, Mayangone Township

Runners: 76 (including the 5 people who did not sign-in like Weedwanker and The Nigerian)

Weather: Very nice indeed, not too hot and not too cold

Time/Distance: 1 h 28 min / 6.8 km inclusive of two Beer Stops if you were Walking and 1 h 30 min / 11.4 km if you were Running and you were El Puerco or Blah Blah.

Not that it is at all important but this Hash saw the return of the long-lost GM after his 6-month sojourn in London. Apart from the loss of hair (both on his chin and on his head) and the loss of a few kilos, not much had changed. Nevertheless, a goodly turnout of Hashers were there to witness the event.

The GM graciously allowed the JM, Ain't Ze Bush, to carry out the ceremonial duties of his high office, whilst he relaxed and opened a beer.

It had not escaped the attention that a Virgin Hasher from the previous week, Eric Charpentier, who had completed the trail in bare feet, had turned up to this week's event with brand new shoes. So naturally Ain't Ze Bush decided that the new shoes were in need of a baptism but the owner of said new shoes was less than enthusiastic about drinking out of them and kept pouring the beer out as fast as Ain't Ze Bush kept pouring it back in. Eventually enough was drunk to satisfy the baying hounds but it seemed that the new Hasher was not keen on getting his feet wet and so completed his second trail as he had his first – in bare feet!

The trail started from perhaps the place that holds the record as the location of the start point of a Yangon Hash but before the Hashers could renew their acquaintance of this tried and tested territory, Hare Wunderbra presented Harriette Do It Quickly with a special tiara in honour of her birthday and she proudly wore it for the whole of the run. Well why wouldn't you if you were 18 (in her dreams) as proclaimed by said tiara.

This run was slightly unusual in that the GM was persuaded to do the Walking Trail by the Hares who were somewhat worried that he might collapse mid-way through the course if he attempted their 15-km marathon after not Hashing for 6 months. The GM thus dutifully followed the Rabbit, Wunderbra, who kept up a respectable Germanic pace and did not allow any dawdling.

Whilst the Walkers set off almost due north, alongside the eastern extremities of the Naga Cave Pagoda, the Runners followed its western boundary and, judging by the route taken by Blah Blah and El Puerco, they failed to follow the trail intended by the Hares and ended up going around in circles until they finally worked out that, if the Walkers had headed east, it was a good chance that they had to do likewise at some point. However, the Walkers made it to the Gyo Phyu Pipeline well before the Runners had caught them up and here the Rabbit directed them southward along the road that lies parallel to the pipeline.

This then allowed the Runners a further opportunity to run around in circles because, when they got to the vicinity of the pipeline, they clearly ran Off Paper but, without the clue of seeing a crowd of Walkers in the distance, they had no indication of which was the best way to go. Inevitably they went the wrong way.

About 400-m along the pipeline, Wunderbra managed to forget the route for the Walkers and had to backtrack slightly to take a left turn along a road that spanned the pipeline. The Runners, meanwhile were busy making lots of little loops although it is not clear if this was because that is where the paper took them — or just the opposite: they were Off Paper and a wee bit lost and just looping around until they found some shreddie again.

However the Runners trail merged with the path taken by the Walkers where the route turned south again and led across a "park" containing the ubiquitous dirt football pitch. Around 250-m later the Walkers crossed back over the Gyo Phyu Pipeline and regained the road from which they had departed not too long beforehand. 500-m further on they were rewarded by the sight of the first Beer Stop, which they were able to enjoy in comparative peace and quiet because the Runners were still trying to work out where the paper was and so had not yet caught up.

Following Beer Stop 1, the Walkers crossed Kaba Aye Pagoda Road and continued straight ahead for about 300-m, by-passing a Check on the way. One advantage of being a Walker is that one doesn't worry too much about Checks (always assuming that the Rabbit has a reasonable grasp of the route that is supposed to be followed). However, the following Runners clearly had their progress interrupted at this point because Blah Blah went left, El Puerco went right and neither of them picked the true trail, which was straight ahead, exactly as the Walkers had done.

Veering off the straight and narrow, the trail eventually took a left turn and entered into the compound of the old Yaegu Water Pumping Station. The pumps have now been taken out and could be seen rusting away whilst the interior of the lovely old colonial building is being stripped and will be turned into who knows what. Sadly the area within the pumping station's extensive grounds have already been transformed from market gardens and a collection of wooden huts into paved roads and apartment blocks. Such is the mark of progress.

The approximate route of Run 1562

[Scale: 1:50,000 or 2 cm = 1 km]

After leaving the pumping station, the pack once again crossed over the Gyo Phyu Pipeline and continued south along Mya Sabai Road for around 250-m. After turning left and then following a meandering route, the pack reached the Circular Railway line and, inevitably, started following it. For a Runner, this is purgatory but the Walking experience is much easier. It was at this point that the FRB Runner (Blah Blah) caught up with the Walkers but the second Beer Stop was just ahead (at Parami Road) and so the combined Running and Walking pack were able to enjoy a convivial beer together. However, it was odd how some of the Runners (such as Do It Quickly) arrived from the opposite direction taken by those who were On Paper. Obviously they never hit the railway track and never deviated off the straight path until they hit Parami Road. A leisurely seven to eight minutes later, the revived Runners and Walkers decided it was time to stretch their legs again and they set off once more along the tracks after running the length of Parami Railway Station.

It was about this point in the proceedings that the bare-footed Frenchman decided to help young Julia choose some tiny flowers to buy from a roadside stall and, in so doing, lost the pack, which was to cause Julia's parents some angst at the end of the run when their daughter failed to appear and was reported last seen in the company of a dodgy Frenchman.

But we are getting ahead of ourselves. Back on the Run/Walk, the trail followed the tracks for a mercifully short distance and then diverted to the right and so followed Myint Zu Street Lane 2. Here the eagle eye of the GM noted that the paper soon turned off said road and headed south again. He notified the Rabbit, Wunderbra, thus and was given a short, German, reprimand that this was the Walking Hash and that the Rabbit was well-aware of where she was going. The Walkers therefore continued straight ahead whilst the Runners did a loop off to the left – well most of them did; Diarrhoea decided to short-cut and followed the Walkers, however, after overtaking them, he turned right at the T-junction at the top of the road instead of left, which was the true trail. When the Walkers eventually got to the T-junction and dutifully turned left as misinstructed by Wunderbra, they were just in time to meet up with the BRB Runners who were finishing the loop. Buddha only knows where Diarrhoea ended up.

And so the Runners and Walkers entered into the final stages of the Hash as they navigated their way through a vast green area that is home to a Police Batallion and various workers of assorted ministries that live in various scattered government housing blocks. Here Smokeback Mountain blew past the GM, trying to prove how fit he was, and this served only to goad the GM into a gently trot for the first time in six months when he realised that there was going to be less than a kilometre to go. He was mighty glad to see the end-point though (and was mighty glad to have beaten Smokeback Mountain to boot). However, the end point, being in the middle of nowhere, confused the FRBs and they set off hither and thither looking for more shreddie and were much perplexed at the absence of further shreddie to follow until they were put out of their misery by the arrival of Hare, Fun Size Kit Kat.

The Circle

With over 70 Hashers on trail, there had to be a few sinners worthy of note. And so it proved. Ain't Ze Bush, ably aided and abetted by RAs Smokeback Mountain and Blah Blah dished out the dirt as follows:

- "BoBo is back!!" Ain't Ze Bush opened proceedings by announcing the bleeding obvious. BoBo took the congratulatory plaudits of his assembled disciples and offered himself as proof that there is life after death.
- There were seven Virgins who survived repeated interrogation by Ain't Ze Bush about whether or not they really were Virgins. Their repeated assurances seemed to suffice in the end and a physical exam by the JM was deemed unnecessary. Paushali was from India; Claire was from Australia; Amel was from Belgium; Linda was from Holland; Julia was a Brit; Mark, the lone male in the company, was Dutch and was here visiting Weedwanker with Linda; and Jess was from Australia. Welcome all.
- By the GM's reckoning there were at least 20 Returnees worthy of being called out but RA-1, Smokeback Mountain relied upon Hashers honesty, which is normally a recipe for disaster. Nevertheless seven self-admitted recalcitrants stepped forward: First up was Little Boy (who would not have been classified as such by the GM) who claimed to have been Hashing in Cambodia;, Who's Fucking Alex and Sister Belinda had been visiting their motherland, Russia; Alistair (also not an official Returnee by the GM's measure); Do It Quickly; Dirty Berti plus his personal nurse, Cock Teacher were all honoured in the usual way. {Ed's note: Ain't Ze Bush also noted one more "a ginger with glasses" but the name attached to said ginger is unknown – perhaps Mark L?}

- Smokeback Mountain declared that it was "Kiss a Ginger Day" and invited BoBo, Little Boy and Finger in the Dijk to form one group while Do It Quickly, Polar Bear and 2-secs formed another. The first group was to kiss Rainbow Balls (who somehow became a Ginger in Smokeback Mountain's eyes) whilst Virgin Claire was the target of the second group. Needless to say, suggestions of "kiss my arse" went unanswered.
- Ain't Ze Bush noted the following but the GM did not know how to interpret it and so it is reported verbatim: "Cum Chuckler complains Hash is slow with little voice … Little Boy said Smokeback Mountain is too big (got a down down)"
- 2-secs was given a leaving Down Down to commiserate her departure to the Nay Pyi Taw of Australia after a grand total of 46 Runs since 30 Aug 2014. However, she was unable to drink her Down Down for the longest time because Ain't Ze Bush decided that he wanted the Hash choir to sing a new song that he had prepared for the occasion and distributed 20 laminated copies of the same. The song lasted almost as long as the run.
- RA-2, Blah Blah, took over the Circle and accused Leprecunt, Assylum Seeker and 2-secs for being chocolate eaters. Not too sure what that was all about but unfair? allusions to rotund shapes and festive over-eating were suggested!
- Stephen G, Hannah Z and some "UK guy" according to Ain't Ze Bush's notes were charged for not calling out at Checks.
- In honour of the day's news, courtesy of Pres. Trump, Rudolph the Flasher, The Nigerian and Six Dirty Tongues were recognised as being from shithole countries.
- Smokeback Mountain took back control of the Circle and, at the GM's suggestion, awarded the birthday girl, Do It Quickly with a well-deserved Down Down most of which went over her head.
- Prison Break was recognised as an SCB par excellence because he did not run but just showed up at the Circle. That earned him a double Down Down but that did NOT go over his head.
- To counter that, the FRB of the day, Blah Blah was duly honoured.
- Cum Chuckler, at the GM's suggestion, was awarded a Down Down for managing to run 17.5 km by running all the way to the start point of the Hash (he was in training for the marathon next week)

Announcements

- Outstation Hash (10 Feb weekend), money needed now.
- Full Moon Hash 20th Anniversary (26 Jan) – register with Le Pimp.
- Hash Ball (24 Mar) details to be announced in due course

Swing Low

- 2-secs and BoBo led the pack in the traditional hymn.

Appendix

- The mysterious bare-footed Frenchman arrived from the wrong direction together with Julia just as the Circle was finishing. Her parents were most grateful that she had not been trafficked and was alive and well.

The On On On

Over 30 Hashers proceeded to The Friendship where endless towers of beer and a substantial amount of food were had for the princely sum of K 10,000 per head (including a more than generous tip). At the end of the feast, the night was still young and so the Hash decamped to Penthouse to join the Hares and Do It Quickly in celebration of the latter's 18th Birthday.
